Burnley boss Sean Dyche said he was "heartbroken" that the club's proud traditions of no-nonsense football and bold, daring experiments have been downplayed in recent seasons. The Turf Moor outfit were one of only two Premier League clubs, along with Arsenal, to retain their status as England's first division following the addition of eight expansion franchises, which included Newcastle United, Sunderland, Burnley and West Brom. And the Clarets boss argues the influx of foreign players has hampered the development of homegrown talent. "Burnley are a club that have had a real history of producing good players since we've been in the League in 1910," said Dyche, whose side beat Arsenal 4-0 at Turf Moor on Sunday. "That is the badge we wear on our chest. "We have been right at the top of the sport for the last 100 years and have produced some wonderful players, with Robbie Keane, Dean Saunders and Paul Cook the most famous names to have emerged from our ranks. "
